There are various ways to make money directly and indirectly from stumbleupon.

Method #1

The first method is to sell your services as a “stumbler” to people who are looking to get their sites stumbled.

There are various forums where people are looking to get their sites stumbled. Most people who are selling such services on these forums are doing this by hand or using some form of semi automation like macros.

There are several forums like

- 1) Digital Point forum: <http://forums.digitalpoint.com>
- 2) Earners Forum: <http://www.earnersforum.com/>
- 3) Free host forum: <http://freehostforum.com/>

If you visit the buy/trade/sell or the sell services sub-forums at these forums you will see that there are several people either seeking somebody who will stumble their sites or others who are selling stumble services.

Look at the example at the digital point forum

Once you have signed up at these forums, search for the appropriate section where people are selling such services and post your own service there.

You can easily earn up to $100 a day if you take on enough clients.

Method #2

The second method is selling domain currency. There are a lot of forums where people exchange favors for forum points, which we'll call domain currency.

Here people will "pay" each other with these forum points as a reward for performing certain actions like filling out forms, digging each others sites etc.

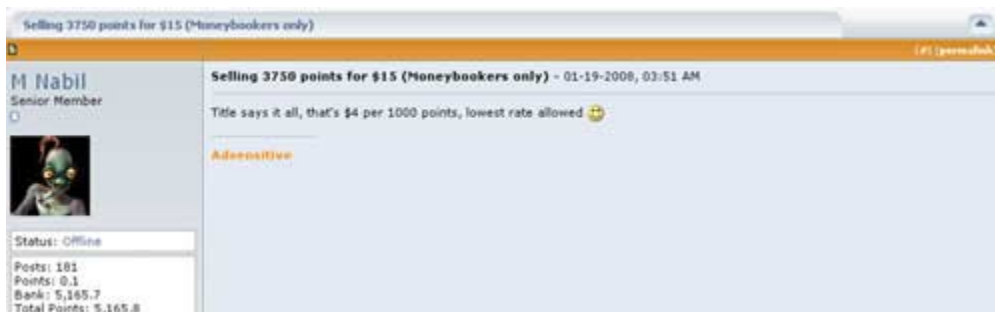

Example here is a guy paying 15 forum points at the ddboard.com "General Marketplace" forum for stumbling his site.

So what you do is stumble the sites of such people asking for this service and also post a new thread announcing your service.

Now once you have accumulated enough forum points you can sell these for real world money to people who are looking to buy these forum points.

For example, here is some guy selling 3700 forum point for $15 on the same forum.

Here are some forums where you can work this method.

- <http://ddboard.com>
- <http://dn temple.com>
- <http://freehostforum.com>
- <http://fhq.forumer.com>
- <http://hostbidder.com>
- <http://namepros.com>

Method #3

This method requires a bit of work but works very well considering its more white hat in nature.

Here you will earn money from sites that pay you per view to an article or video or photo.

The site I'm talking about is <http://thenewsroom.com>

For thenewsroom, go and create your account. Then go to blogger.com and build a blog based on any theme of your choice.

Next visit thenewroom and pick up their embedding code.

For more info visit: <http://thenewsroom.com/mashing>

Once you have your blog setup and have the code added in, all you need to do is stumble this blog using hundreds of stumbleupon accounts.

Thenewsroom will pay you $4 per 1000 views.

If you want this to work well, then use entertaining videos and pics to embed.

With enough traffic this is a self sustaining model as once people visit your blog and like it, they in turn will stumble it.

An additional strategy is to include a digg button so that visitors can additionally dig your blog page.

Additional monetization avenues

There are several image hosts that not only let you host your images on their sites, but also pay you every time a person views the image.

Sign up with a free account with either one of these hosts and upload your images using their online upload form. Once you do this, you'll get a series of links which you can choose to place in your blog, website or use in your forum posts and email.

This link will show a thumbnail image of the picture you've uploaded and will lead to the webpage of the image host, where the full sized image is hosted.

When anyone clicks on the image, they'll get to see the full image and this is counted as one impression

These sites have payment ratios that are determined by the number of impressions.

For example, Imagefly currently has a payment ratio of US $1 : 4500 impressions, which means that you'll earn US$1 for every 4500 unique views of any particular image. Other sites are Share-a-pic, Imagefap and Imagereverb

So if you were to have 100 images and they are viewed by 45 people then you make one buck.

Though this seems like a small amount, it's a residual amount and over time if you have enough images spread out, it's a nice chunk of change.

If you are looking to automate your stumbling then you need software that can create thousands of Stumbleupon accounts and post reviews and stumble your sites using those accounts...
